GERMAN ARTILLERY BOMBARDS YPRES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Amsterdam, April 23.—German troops have opened a new and violent offensive on the western front. Their artillery began a severe bombardment of Ypres Wednesday night that is still going on. At several points in the battle-front running through Flanders and down into France their infantry forces are making attacks both by day and by night.

This renewed offensive is a counter-thrust to that of the British forces. It was made possible by the arrival of heavy reinforcements from Antwerp, Liege and Aix-La-Chapelle. For five days all the railroads in Belgium have been given up to the transportation of these troops, reported here to number from 450,000 to 600,000 men.

Though the British and French artillery has replied vigorously to German shelling Ypres, severe damage has been caused there and what was left of the town after previous bombardments is being destroyed. Fires are reported in several sections of the town. Many persons have been killed.

The fury of the German attacks resulted in some gains in the trench fighting about Zillebeke, but on Thursday morning the British made a counter-attack but regained all their lost ground.

MYSTERY IN NAVAL MANEUVERS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 23.—England is awaiting the developments of the next 24 hours with outward calm, but beneath the surface there is an element of anxiety that cannot be concealed. Great operations in the North Sea are believed by the naval experts to be under way.

Traffic between England and Holland has stopped by order of the government. With few exceptions, communication with all the east coast ports has been cut off.

These two developments, the naval experts say, are evidence that a great clash for the sea mastery is imminent, if it has not already begun. While the announcement in Berlin that British submarines have invaded Heligoland Bight was unconfirmed by the British admiralty this forenoon, it was generally accepted as true.

Early in the war Winston Spencer Churchill, head of the admiralty, said that England would compel the German fleet to come out and fight. The operations at Heligoland may be part of the plan to smash the bottle that has held the German battleship squadron for many months.

Mr. Churchill returned today from France where he conferred with the French minister of marine. While no official statement has been issued to the subject under discussion by the two men who are directing the naval operations of the western allies it is reported that they took up in detail the North Sea situation and the Dardanelles, laying plans for the most stupendous naval operations the world has ever witnessed.

These are said to include arrangements for protecting the landing of troops at four different points on the Turkish coast other than Enos, which is reported evacuated by the Turks and occupied by soldiers of the allies.

In some quarters the opinion was expressed today that a decisive stage of the war had been reached. A dispatch from Rotterdam states that the German government has forbidden any one to leave Germany at present. It is believed that such a step would have been taken only owing to the fact that Germany is making plans that must be guarded with the utmost secrecy.

They Had to Walk.

Three Marlborough boys, Vincent Gambo, Joseph Ruono and James Capello, received a novel sentence in Newburgh recorder's court on Thursday. The boys were in New York and boarded the Newburgh to come home to Marlborough. They told Purser Conklin that they only had $1.50 between them for the fare home but he refused to accept it. The trio then broke a window on the boat. After their arrest and arraignment the court ordered that they turn over the money as part payment. Stripped of every cent they were forced to walk home to Marlborough.

Thirty Firemen Overcome.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 23.—Thirty firemen were overcome by deadly fumes today when a tank containing thirty gallons of nitric and sulphuric acid overflowed, during a fire in the Sheffield's Standard Plant Company's building, 296-298 Canal street. Three of the fire fighters were removed to hospitals and it is feared they will die. The loss was $10,000.

Walton Introduces Canal Bill.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, April 23.—Senator Walton has introduced a bill appropriating $10,000 for the making of a survey and map of the abandoned Delaware and Hudson canal, with a report as to its present condition and the advisability of reopening and reconstructing it.

ROOT RECALLS FORMER CONVENTION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, April 23.—Senator Elihu Root, chairman of the Constitutional Convention has ably contrasted the parallel between the present convention and the one that preceded it in a speech at the meeting of the Academy of Political Science delivered last year. The words of the distinguished diplomat and senator are of peculiar interest on the eve of the return to the capitol of the one hundred and sixty-eight delegates who will revise the state constitution under the guidance of their chairman.

"There is an interesting parallel between the present constitutional convention and the one that preceded it," observed Senator Root. "The last one ought to have occurred in 1887, twenty years after the convention of 1867. It did not please the party which happened to be in power in 1887 and for a number of years afterward to have the convention, because they could not get the arrangements just to suit them. At last, in 1892, everything was right and the convention was determined upon and brought on; delegates were elected in 1892, and a convention was held in 1894. But lo, after everything was right and the convention was determined upon there came a revolution in the politics of the state, and the other party elected a majority of the delegates and controlled the convention."

"At this time it seemed to some one—I don't know to whom—that it would be a bright stroke of politics to advance the convention, and so a special election was held, and the convention was brought on by a narrow majority, composed in part, we already know by judicial decisions, of fraudulent votes. But lo, after the convention was thus determined upon on a revolution occurred and the other party controls the convention."

"And the lesson is that it does not pay to be too acute and adroit and cunning in American politics. The best way is to go on in a simple direct, honest, faithful effort to help the working of our free self-government. Whoever does that will go ahead of the very smart politicians every time."

Senator Root pointed out in his next thought that in September, 1914 the convention of that year had substantially completed its work, and had taken a recess for a few days to enable the committee on revision to give the last careful consideration to the terms or form of work. He said that he went from Albany to Saratoga, where the Republican convention was held and found himself put on the committee of resolutions.

"I attended the meeting of the committee and someone produced a platform which had been prepared and which was handed to the chairman of the committee. The platform was read, or run through hastily and the chairman was about to put it to a vote. I noticed that no mention was made in this platform of the work of constitutional convention—a convention the majority of opinion from all parts of the state of New York, who spent three days in discussing the question as to what position the Republican party ought to take in regard to the work of the constitutional convention. That marks a change in the public attitude towards questions of government."

MANY CANDIDATES.

Several Patriots Are Willing to Succeed Mr. Simpson.

A number of candidates for the position of clerk of the board of election commissioners have sprung up in the past few days. The position is now held by James V. Simpson, who assumes his duties as a member of the police force the first of May, having been appointed at a recent meeting of the police board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Policeman Johnston. Among those who are said to be in a receptive mood for the job of clerk of the election board are Philip Gillen, E. P. Snyder, John Salzman and Harold Burroughs. The appointment of clerk is made by the election board, but as to who they will appoint they are not making public.

Men's Rehearsal Tonight.

The singing men of our city are reminded of the special rehearsal for men alone, to be held in one of the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. building tonight at eight o'clock. Not only those men who are not members of the two Social Mannerer Societies and the Mendelssohn Club, but those clubs themselves are asked to be present at this rehearsal tonight. It is understood that a number of new masculine members will be enrolled tonight, all men who are good readers and singers. The more the better.

ROOSEVELT IS GREATLY PLEASED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Syracuse, April 23.—"Mr. Ivins is the best friend I have in the world." Colonel Theodore Roosevelt said that to an associate before court reconvened today to allow William Mills Ivins to continue his cross-examination of the defendant in William Barnes's $50,000 libel suit against the colonel.

Colonel Roosevelt has grinned like a happy boy ever since his testimony of yesterday. Whatever may be the opinion of the public, he is satisfied he has scored heavily against the man he accused as a corrupt boss—"drawn first blood."

The colonel was grateful for the opportunity and his remark about Ivins being his best friend, meant that he thanked the opposing lawyer for laying the platform that allowed the ex-president to exploit himself from the stand.

The throng that flocked to the Onondaga court house today hours before they could get in, showed that the colonel is the hero of the town, at any rate. The man who could knock the war from the front page of every newspaper, regardless of its politics won the admiration of the people here.

Roosevelt adherents here today declared he has "come back" and that William Barnes, supposedly his enemy and his opponent in this sensational law suit, has done for Mr. Roosevelt what he never could have done for himself.

On the other hand, Mr. Barnes and his advisers appear confident.

"We are not through yet," Mr. Ivins said, "and it is not to be said that Mr. Roosevelt has yet answered the tax proposition or his close association with Senator Platt, B. B. Odell and the rest of that crowd."

When the trial was resumed at 10 o'clock Colonel Roosevelt took the stand and it was hoped by both sides that his cross-examination would be finished today. If it is, there will be no session of court tomorrow and the lawyers in the case will be guests of Justice William S. Andrews on his farm, over the week end.

This may not be a political trial, as Mr. Ivins declared last Sunday night at Albany, but there has been nothing but politics in the evidence, every Republican up-state politician who could get to Syracuse is here, and nothing but politics is talked in the court house corridors and the lobbies of the hotels.

The tremendous interest of the people and the near-riots for admission to the court room indicated this would be another "Roosevelt day" with the gallery, if not with the jury.

When the trial was resumed at 10 o'clock Colonel Roosevelt took the stand and it was hoped by both sides that his cross-examination would be finished today. If it is, there will be no session of court tomorrow and the lawyers in the case will be guests of Justice William S. Andrews on his farm, over the week end.

CHAUTAUQUA WELL ATTENDED

The auditorium of the new high school was well filled Thursday at the second day's session of Kingston's Chautauqua. The afternoon's program opened with one of the series of lectures by the platform superintendent, Dr. A. D. Harmon, he speaking on "Social Waste." The lecture was found intensely interesting. Dr. Harmon being endowed with exceptional qualifications as a platform speaker. These series of lectures by Dr. Harmon will be given on the different afternoons of the Chautauqua, and are the features of the program. The afternoon's entertainment by the Springer Company in music and magic, was heard and witnessed by an appreciative gathering.

The evening's entertainment was opened by the Springer Company, they presenting a varied program. Walno Kauppi, the boy violinist, who has played many noteworthy engagements in America and Europe, opened the program, his playing being nothing short of marvelous, aside from the fact of his youth. Miss Mae Gordon, one of the platform's cleverest readers, won favor with the audience and was forced to respond to repeated encores. Mr. Springer in his feats of magic, was mystifying, the overflowing of the illuminated umbrellas with hundreds of roses, and the turning of water into wine, and wine in water, were the features of his act.

The lecture recital, "The Poetry of Life," by Dr. Paul M. Pearson, was one of the most forceful and entertaining methods of expressing the great messages the world's literary masterpieces have for us. Dr. Pearson in his remarks stated that the new high school was the finest building in which he has yet appeared.

This afternoon's program consisted of a series lecture by Dr. Harmon, the superintendent, and a concert by the Crawford Adams Trio, which will open this evening's session followed by Montville Flowers in his lecture "Color Guard and Picked Line."

FRENCH CUTTING GERMAN WEDGE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 23.—Bitten by the French attacks are cutting into the German wedge at St. Mihiel. The capture of two lines of trenches in the forest of Apremont, which lies south of the German salient, is regarded here as most important. If the French can recapture the northern part of the forest, which was taken by the Germans early in the war, they will render untenable the positions of the Kaiser's troops and straighten their line.

While the official communique issued here today states that there is nothing to add to last night's report, unofficial reports from the front say that violent fighting is proceeding in the forest of Apremont, the Germans launching repeated attacks in efforts to regain the lost trenches.

The Battle of the Cliffs in Alsace is proceeding without cessation. This campaign on the crests and in the valleys of the Vosges it waged under difficult conditions. It may drag along for several weeks before a decisive result is attained, but the French claim gains on both banks of the Ficht river.

1915 WHEAT CROP LESS THAN IN 1914

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 23.—The great demand for wheat because of the war, resulted in an increase in the world wheat acreage for 1915, the department of agriculture today announced in its "Farmers' Bulletin."

This applies to winter wheat sowings as little change in the total spring wheat acreage has been indicated because of a probable reduction of about 15 per cent in Russia.

"Sowings of winter wheat in the northern hemisphere have been pretty generally on an extensive scale, excepting in some European countries involved in the war," the Bulletin says.

"In the U. S. British India and Canada the area sown last autumn was increased by about 8,500,000 acres over that of the year before; there also was some expansion in the neutral countries of Southwestern Europe."

The April 1 condition of winter wheat in the U. S. indicated a total production of 619,000,000 bushels against 684,990,000 last year.

Teach Honesty.

Mothers, teach your little ones when very young to be frank and honest; show them that almost any mischief is preferable to deceit and falsehood, and then, when they realize the value of truth, trust them. You have no idea how great an influence a mother's trust can be. The very knowledge that mother trusts them will be enough to hold the little ones back from any real evil.

MANY DROWNED IN TEXAS FLOODS

The Colorado river is at flood stage and the worst flood in the history of this stream was in prospect today.

SUBMARINES IN NORTH SEA

Seven survivors of the trawler's crew were landed at Grimsby today. They were picked up at sea by the trawler Queenstown. According to the sailors, the German submarine also attacked the Queenstown, but that vessel escaped and carried the survivors of the St. Lawrence to port.

Spaulding on Barclay Heights, Saugerties, was entered by robbers some time last night but the amount of valuables secured is not known as Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding are in New York city and the employees do not know what articles of value were stored in the house. The silverware was not secured as this had been placed in the First National Bank of Saugerties when the place was closed last fall.

Red Monograms Play Poughkeepsie
Hustlers on McVey's Field.

The Red Monogram baseball club of this city will get their first real try-out of the season when they clash with the Hustlers of Poughkeepsie at McVey's field Sunday afternoon. The Hustlers are the team that is to represent Poughkeepsie in the newly organized tri-county league which will be formally opened on May 23.

In the Hustlers' line up will be seen many faces familiar to local followers of the national sport, most prominent among whom are "Ernie"
Ressique, of Hudson river league fame, the Joy brothers, former Kingston stars and members of the New York and New Jersey Poughkeepsie league team, and also Mc-Coomb, Hempe and other well known players. The team will also be strengthened by the addition of "Skip" McCarthy, a former Fordham College catcher, and well known here as the coach of the Ulster Academy football team.

The Red Monogram team will be picked from the following crack local players: Cragin, Smedes, Spalt,
Williams, Scherer, Cook, Bedford,
Ashdown, Graizer, McLean, Fitzgerald and Nolan. Several promising young players will also be given a trial to make good in semi-professional company. A preliminary game will be played between two local teams. At the Eagle Hotel in this city a meeting will be held Sunday after the game to make final arrangements for the opening of the new league, and rules, regulations and appointment of umpires will be attended to.

That the tri-county league will prove successful is the opinion of the fans in the different cities, men of prominence being interested as are all the well known sporting men of the Hudson river cities.

Woman's World

The Wife of a Great Writer
Who Has Opinions Also.

LADY DOYLE

Lady Doyle, whose husband, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is a literary expert on crimes and criminals, concurs with him in his idea about Sing Sing. The following is what that noted author said after a five minute voluntary incarceration in one of the cells of the prison:

"It ought to be burned down," he exclaimed indignantly. "The buildings are absolutely antiquated, and it is nothing less than a disgrace for a state so great and wealthy as New York to have a prison which is a hundred years behind the times."

"I am a medical man, and naturally I was interested in the sanitary conditions and the way the buildings were constructed, and I saw enough. No, I have never read or even heard of any of the reports on conditions in Sing Sing which may have been issued. I didn't need any reports; I saw the place."

"I don't wish to pose as an authority on English prisons," the novelist went on, "but I doubt if we have any as insanitary as Sing Sing, except perhaps in very remote districts. Certainly there are none in London or the larger cities."

"The cells ought to be knocked three or four into one. As to the types of prisoners whom I saw there, I should say that it struck me that the great mistake of the penal laws is in their failure to allow freer scope for treatment of the individual."

"But is there such a thing as an American criminal?" he asked. "There in Sing Sing I saw great numbers of men evidently of foreign birth. Your criminals are like your life—cosmopolitan."

In all of these opinions Lady Doyle echoes her distinguished husband.

Sir Conan Doyle married Miss Jean Leckie Sept. 18, 1907. She is his second wife, and gives her husband much sympathy and inspiration in his profession of story writing. Dr. Doyle has given up entirely the practice of medicine.

LINEN AND LACE CENTERPIECE

Round Pieces Are Much in Vogue This Season.

Linen lace and embroidery are used in the centerpiece pictured here. The embroidery is combined with net, from under which the linen is cut away, leaving the flowers and leaves of the net held to the linen by the embroidery. Linen torchon lace is used as an edging.

White and Black Stripes.
White and black stripes are used in almost every fabric, but perhaps no more attractively than in voile or chiffon mounted over a foundation of white tulle. Often the overdress of stripes is edged with blue or black velvet ribbon, which gives it a stability and charm it would otherwise lack.

Benefit Dance.

Tuesday evening a benefit dance for the Knights of Columbus baseball team will be given in the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway. Music by Muller's orchestra. The team will open the season on Sunday afternoon with the Madala team in that place.

Neutrality Through Red Cross.

The American Red Cross, through Mrs. Whitehead Reid, has received a letter from Queen Alexandra, written by her own hand, thanking the American Red Cross and American people for their magnificent gifts of the Red Cross and the kind assistance and sympathy of the American people, during the present war. From Count Rudolf Trautman, of the Central Organization of the Austrian Red Cross, on the opposing side of this warfare, comes an equally thankful letter for the aid of the American Red Cross and people. As is known, American surgeons and nurses have sailed for typhus-stricken Serbia to do all in their power to aid in fighting that one common enemy of all combatants, and which unless fought here, untrigly and scientifically will win more battles the coming summer than any human army. A large gift of $1,135 has just been sent to the European war relief fund of the American Red Cross, by the Temporary Panama Pacific Exposition Building Commission of Nebraska. This money, which has been used originally to build a Nebraska building at the great exposition, was, by full consent, given to this aid for suffering humanity. A gift, through the American Red Cross of $5,000 and which has been applied to the needs of the American Red Cross Hospital in Buda-Pest, has been gratefully acknowledged. A group of surgeons and nurses have just sailed for La Panne, Belgium, for six months' service under Dr. De Page, who is directing the Red Cross work among the Belgian soldiers. Another American Red Cross surgeon has also just gone to England, and will be the second assistant surgeon in the Paifont Hospital.

The American Red Cross has just issued a concise statement of the work already done in the war zone by this organization as supported by the American people, which for a statistical report is most interesting reading. Now, in view of the more than probable outbreak of typhus and typhoid fever and cholera, in addition to the present horrors of war, our Red Cross asks for further contributions in order that an active, and as far as possible, a sure preventive campaign against these dread diseases that may, so easily sweep in to our own country, may be carried Edward Y. Jenkins spent Sunday here, attending church and visiting at Ed. Young's and C. S. Northrip's, also calling on old friends.

Workmen of the Mead & Taft Co. are busy at the residence of Mrs. M. Clarke. They board at Briscoe House.

Sherman Williams, of the state university at Albany, gave a most interesting and inspiring talk along the line. No definite action could be taken as this is a subject which every person who has the welfare of Milton at heart should be interested.

The time seems to have come when this very important matter should be cared for and District Nos. 1, 2 and 4 should form one good and useful building which would put enthusiasm in pupils and teachers. No. 1 now being situated on one of the best residential streets is quite displeasing to a number of the inhabitants because of the noise, ball playing, etc. It is hoped that the very near future will see our children and youth cared for in ways that may help them along in life to a better advantage.

Mrs. R. W. Hallock visited her sister, Mrs. Rushmore in Plainfield, N. J., last week and returned on Tuesday.

Miss Lauretta Spratt has also returned from a visit in Brooklyn.

Miss Lula Clarke visited friends in Beacon last week.

Services on Sunday in the Methodist Church: Sunday school at 10 a.

m., and morning worship at 11 o'clock. Subject of sermon, "Grieving the Holy Spirit." Epworth League devotional meeting at 7 o'clock. Topic, "What the League is Doing in India." Leader, Miss Caroline Sears. Evening worship at 7:30. Subject of sermon, "Self Control."

A union temperance service will be held in the Friends' Church Sunday evening, May 2.

The Ladies' Aid are to hold a strawberry and ice cream festival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Conklin, Sr., on the afternoon and evening of May 29.

Our druggist, Carl Christensen, has purchased a new Reo car.

Attorney and Mrs. J. B. Ball entertained Prof. Sherman Williams during his stay here in the interest of a new public school.

Malcolm A. Northrip is to sing with a class of boys at the Marlborough Mission on Sunday afternoon.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Bell visited Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bell recently.

THE NIMBLE DOLLAR.

Two hundred and seventy-five million dollars is the amount estimated to have been paid last year by the American public to see moving picture shows. This is a large sum to expend for amusement and at first thought the pessimist who is looking for reasons for business depression is liable to fall into error and blame conditions to the "movies." In every community opinion can be obtained that if people would spend less for automobiles and moving pictures there would be greater prosperity in that section.

It is true that the greater part of every dollar expended for theatrical amusements is passed on from the smaller town to the city which supplies the films, if the attraction is a moving picture show, or to the theatrical or other owners of the enterprises of different character. But the same statement is true of every business except manufacturing; grocery, dry goods, furniture and all other staple and notion stores pass along to some other city the larger part of the dollar expended in the store, because the producer must be paid, and between the producer and the consumer are many wage-earners and salaried men whose income is derived from the transportation of merchandise, or as middlemen in the sale of merchandise, no matter what its character may be.

The moving picture business and the automobile business have opened up new fields of activity, and all the men and women engaged in those businesses must be paid as well as the host of handlers, salesmen, shippers and brokers through whose hands the articles pass or whose industry in their various branches keeps the business going. So far as retaining money is concerned, Kingston keeps comparatively few of the dollars expended by the public and the bulk of it passes on to other communities and makes trade active all along the line. Other communities have taken the initiative in the installation or marketing of industries which have resulted in diverting the flow of business and money in their direction. In other words, they are creating wealth, and as long as men of inventive genius keep busy and create things which the public wants, just so long will there be a continuation of increasing wealth of the country and it will keep pace with the increase in population.

To reap the benefit of increased wealth, money must remain in constant circulation, and there must be new money—that is, money brought from outside sources, from whose stream everyone takes his mite as the stream passes his store, his warehouse or his office, until finally it reaches the producer and is by him disbursed among the wage earners and passes again to the producer of the raw material to be again disbursed in similar fashion. Moving pictures, therefore, have created a new field for money-spending and for money-earning, and the places and the people which are reaping the benefit are the places and people which have most readily adjusted themselves to the constantly changing conditions and adopted the new methods.

What is true of the moving picture industry is true also of every other industry. The community which believes that it must follow one line of activity only and becomes its fate when there is no longer a demand, or a slackened demand, for the products of such activity, will die of dry rot. To be successful, to remain alive, communities like men not only must keep pace with new development elsewhere but must themselves develop along the lines of changing conditions. Men in the moving picture business were not born in it and they will not remain in it when that business slackens but will adapt themselves to something new. At the same time they will continue to supply the demand while it lasts. That is what Kingston and every other community must do in order to remain alive and in the front rank.

For every dollar which goes out of Kingston, we should make an effort to bring in a dollar and a half.

WOMEN DRUMMERS.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

It is a revelation to meet a successful woman drummer, as one does now and then, and to absorb, if ever so slightly, a bit of her charming breeziness, admiring all the while the multiplicity of her attainments, natural or acquired. For certain assets she must have or success is not likely long to perch upon her business banner.

Clever and resourceful? Indeed, to a nicety, and right in her element too; for she loves to talk, is always perfectly at ease, tactful, quick to take advantage of an opportune moment and prepared for graceful exit when she knows she is not wanted—a qualification not strikingly in evidence the business world over.

Memory has not quite obliterated the day when the mere suggestion of a woman drummer would have been synonymous with all that was unfeminine and intolerable, but in this advanced period she is stamped with the seal of success and well enrolled in the growing army of "knights of the grip."

Originally her field of activity was limited almost exclusively to articles which brought her in touch with women, but gradually her operations have been broadened until today her dozen or more trunks are packed with goods destined for inspection by large mercantile houses of varying types, and the business so long monopolized by man must be shared with his fair sister.

His pace is not lessened by the competition, for houses employing women in this enterprise have felt the impetus of their zeal and energy, and they are not selected for the by-ways and little towns. They exercise their art in the heart of the world and Mr. Man must "keep going" lest they run away with his sales.

My first glimpse of a successful exponent of this art was educating. Unconsciously, one figures a type, you know, and fancy pictures a rather severe, just-a-bit-masculine woman, ungraced by the pleasing tone we are fond of imparting to the particular type of our admiration. But fancy was all wrong and simply in line with the prejudices of the past, for "my lady of the grip" was wondrously gracious and feminine to a degree; quite dignified, but brisk and altogether businesslike.

Nature had been kind to her in the distribution of gifts and had well equipped her for her part in life. Quick intuition told her the exact thing to say, and with a word here, a smile there, a bit of explanation and an appealing air of deference to masculine judgment—carefully assumed, without doubt—the order was credited; and she passed on.

From some viewpoints and upon some occasions, the woman drummer may have a natural advantage over her masculine competitor. All other things being equal, the mere fact that she is a woman may secure her an audience and an order, for in this matter-of-fact old world there are yielding folk of the masculine variety who vastly prefer to send a woman rejoicing on her way than to tell her "Nothing doing today!"

But perhaps for every such concession, there's a relentless Mr. Somebody who believes that mere woman has not the least particle of right to be seeking the trade of the world; and he may not let her even slip through his front door. For there are a few who really reason that way.

The quota of women drummers is made up from all the large cities, and some drift in from the by-ways. They are the natural product of the twentieth century, and are increasing numerically and effectively in all directions. Not infrequently a young woman fresh from college casts in her lot with the zealous workers, and in time her income may reach the pretty figure of $5,000 a year—and it is not every work which yields so abundantly.

All of which sounds very easy and attractive; but one's business boat should be launched far away from the drummer field unless nature has bestowed the abundant equipment of tact, resourcefulness, cleverness and unwearied zeal—and even then the waters may grow very troublesome.

The activities, the brushing against all sorts of human elements, the changing life from city to city, the ups and downs and all, are not the most alluring prospects; and only conspicuous fitness and adaptability should lure a woman to the field.

Having entered it, these natural assets, together with the crowning spirit of womanliness—which helps, whatever, wherever the field—give promise of fine success.

Not So Small After All.

Count Karolyi, on returning to his castle in Hungary, met, according to The Vossische Zeitung, one of his old servants who had just been sent back wounded from the war. "My good man, I hear you fought valiantly at the front," said the Count. "I should like to give you some reward. What shall it be?" The old servant replied: "Well, if you insist upon it, sir, just give me enough krons to reach from one ear to the other." "That seems to be a very small reward," replied the Count, smiling at the odd request. "It's enough for me sir," answered the servant, modestly. As the Count was about to comply with the strange request, he noticed that the servant had only one ear, and remarked upon the fact. "Yes, sir, I left the other ear on the battlefield at Shabatz!" answered the modest man.

Old-Fashioned.

John Henry had been calling at the home of Myrtle Marie for months without making much headway toward matrimony, but eventually Little Cupid chased him out of the bashful gloom.

"Dearest," suddenly remarked John Henry one night, going over and sitting close by the side of the beautiful girl, "I intend to see your father tonight and ask him for your hand."

"You make me sigh," wearily responded the girl. "Why will you insist on being so old-fashioned?"

"Old-fashioned?" wonderingly rejoined John. "I don't get you, dear."

"Don't go and ask him," imperiously answered dearest. "Go tell him."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Everybody Happy.

A vicar of a certain English parish was sitting in his study one morning when in burst the verger in a great state of excitement.

"Mr. —," mentioning the curate's name, "wants you at once, sir," he exclaimed. "He has married two couples and married the two men to the wrong women, and he does not know what to do."

"Have they signed the register?" inquired the clergyman.

"No," was the verger's response.

"They they can be married again," said the vicar. "Tell Mr. — I will be at the church in a minute or two to perform the ceremony."

In due course the incumbent made his way to the church and found the parties gathered at the entrance. Before he could say anything one of the bridegrooms approached and said:

"We have been talking it over, sir, and we have made up our minds to remain as we are." And they did so.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The weather forecaster had crossed the styx and was swelling around among the other shades, telling what a smart man he was on earth. At last a venerable shade approached the weather forecaster and said:

"Why, do you wear all those medals?"

"I was the champion weather forecaster while I was on earth," was the reply.

"It is strange that I never got any medals," mused the venerable shade.

"Why?" asked the weather forecaster. "Who are you?"

"I am Noah," replied the venerable shade.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

J. J. Arnoys, M. E. Clark and Mrs. U. A. Hoar attended the meeting of the Classes of Orange held in the Reformed Church at New Prospect on Tuesday. It was the spring session and the delegates report a fine meeting.

The railroad crusher is at work with a force of twenty men. They have it so arranged that the stone is taken from the quarries in cars that run down a track to the crusher, the weight of the loaded car drawing up an empty car to be loaded.

A new band which is named the Peoples band has been organized in Ellenville with James W. Russell as leader. Several well known musicians of Ellenville and Kerhonkson are among its members.

A chorus of twenty-five voices is being organized in Ellenville to practice preparatory to taking part in May in the presentation of the Oratorio Handels Creation at Kingston. Frank J. Campbell organist of the M. E. Church is the leader of the movement and has enlisted about twenty-five of the leading singers of the village.

Mabon a friend of the groom and assisted by the pastor of the church. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Townsend will reside in their new home "Elmercroft" at Enfield, Mass.

DR. METCHNIKOFF

SCIENTISTS UNDIVIDED BY WAR
ASSERTS DR. METCHNIKOFF.

Paris, April 23.—Dr. Metchnikoff, in his laboratory in Pasteur Institute, said "The learned world is not at war. It is only watching the results that each man has achieved in the common war against the man-destraining, countryless, microbes."

The professor believes that war hatred is dying down and as far as the scientific world is concerned no grudges are born by servants of one nationality against those of another. He believes Europe has nothing to fear in a Russian victory, as he thinks it will insure success of the great liberal, social and political movement there.

Bear Postman.

The most curious letter carrier yet heard of seems to be one that covered a small route in far-off Alaska some months ago—nothing less than a bear harnessed to a bicycle on which his master fastened the mail sack. Bruin hauled the load while his master steered the wheel, and so much interest was excited by this strange combination that the outfit was taken to England for exhibition purposes.—St. Nicholas.

Hackneyed Shakespeare.

"Yes," said Mr. Parvey New, "that fellow Shakespeare has some pretty good ideas and writes some very good things, but his works are full of hackneyed phrases. Why, I absolutely know that lots of them have been used as common slang ever since I was a mere boy."

"Bud" Colwell, Inventor.
Shandaken, April 23.—Edward Colwell, Jr., who is known in Kingston where he formerly resided, is showing much talent as an inventor and gives promise of being one of our leading men in the future. He is at present working on a patent, the nature of which cannot be disclosed at present for obvious reasons.

"Bud," as he is familiarly known to his friends, has just turned fifteen years and his kindly and genial disposition makes him a general favorite. THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

A Dream Joke.
Almost every one has dreamed of writing a poem, delivering a speech or making a witty remark that seemed at the time wonderfully brilliant, but that, recalled on waking, proved to be either commonplace or wholly meaningless. That is not always the case, however, as this story, which the Rev. Washington Gladden is fond of telling, proves.

"I dreamed," says Dr. Gladden, "that the old house that formerly stood near my church was still there and that old Mr. Deshler, who has been dead many years, still lived in it. I also knew that his old dog, George, who never failed to bark at me when I passed the house, still lived. In my dream I was passing the house when the door opened and the old gentleman came out, followed by George, who, as usual, rushed barking up to me.

"Now, now, George," said the old man, 'you ought not to do that. You know that's a friend of ours. That's Dr. Gladden.'"

"Oh, I have met George before," I responded to the introduction. "In fact, George and I have for some time had a bowwowing acquaintance."—Exchange.

Obedient Regulations.
Little Bessie went to the park with grandpa. She was passionately fond of flowers, and grandpa lifted her up to see the pretty flowers in the urn. A policeman came along and said: "You mustn't pick the flowers, little girl," to which she gravely replied: "Tunt pick 'em; I only 'mell 'em."

Couldn't Fease Him.
A subaltern was marching along with his company. He was very young, and his men evidently thought him inexperienced, so they struck up "A little child shall lead them, lead them gently home." When they had finished he halted the company and said, "Now we'll have that verse over again." Game, wasn't he?

Daily Thought.
Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but, above all, the power of going out of one's self and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another.—Thomas Hughes.

Dog Figured Things Out.
A St. Louis man had his left foot caught between the bumpers of two freight cars on a siding, and was unable to extricate himself. The man, who had become unconscious, might have lost his life if a Scotch collie had not understood the situation. The dog ran home, only a short distance, and gave the alarm. An investigation followed, and the man was saved.

Something of a Novelty.
Young Actress—"I am going to get married and I would like you to make a big story about it." Dramatic Editor—"I don't see just how I can." Young Actress—"Oh, yes, you can; you can have a great headline saying: 'Actress Marries for the First Time in Her Life!'"—Puck.

There are three rivers known as Colorado. The first is in Utah and Arizona, and is 1,800 miles long; the second is a river in Texas, 900 miles in length; the third is in the Argentine Republic, in South America, and is 400 miles long.

STREAK OF LIGHTNING

Shortstop Maranville Regarded as Wonder of Baseball.

He is About the Size of a Boy, With Speed of a Jackrabbit, and a Mighty Strong Arm—Has Odd Way of Catching a Fly.

Rabbit Maranville, shortstop of the Boston Braves, is the lightning spark of this amazing team. He is a wonder of baseball, being the size of a boy with the speed of a jackrabbit and the arm of Moriarty.

When fans go out to see the Braves play they go chiefly to see Johnny Evers, the great trio of pitchers—and Maranville.

Chief among the attractions is the manner in which he catches a fly. He dashes after it and then stands looking up at it as it descends. His arms lie loosely at his sides. He doesn't set himself a particle. It nears him, faster and faster.

Just as it comes on a level with his head he puts his hands together at his waist and nonchalantly catches it. He is the only star in captivity who catches a ball in this remarkable manner.

Fans gasp when he performs the stunt. They are always looking for him to drop it—but he apparently never does.

Maranville gets a grounder unlike other shortstops. He gathers up the ball in a most unconcerned fashion and can whip it across at fearful speed. One has to wonder where he gets the strength. There is no jerk to his movement, no effort whatever. Then, when he is at the bat. He has a short, heavy stick. This he holds in the middle so that about a foot and a half is left to crack the ball. And it's no infrequent thing to see him whale a double or a triple.

The lad has all sorts of pep and works like a whirlwind with Evers around second. Nobody wanted this little fellow because he "wasn't big enough for fast company." George Stallings signed Maranville and said to him: "You're just the man I want. My idea of a shortstop is a small man. He can get over the ground faster than a big man. Don't worry about your size, Maranville. Just cover the ground and I'll keep you with this big show."

And Maranville was relieved of the worry of stature and—did he make good?

Johnny Evers and Stallings claim that he is the greatest shortstop that ever played the game! Of course, that's a Boston claim but, truth to tell, Maranville played the position in a dazzling way during the Braves' thrilling rush to the front. All of which goes to show that a man who is fast, game, and a hitter can get along no matter if he is not higher than a top hat.

BASEBALL NOTES

Branch Rickey and Bill Donovan are said to be carrying on negotiations for the exchange of a few players.

Securing a second baseman to replace McLarry is worrying the management of the Louisville club.

President Thomas of the Cubs declares this will be a banner year in baseball. Carrying the banner?

Manager Rebel Oakes of the Pittsburgh Rebels believes he has another Chief Bender in Pitcher Clinton Rogge.

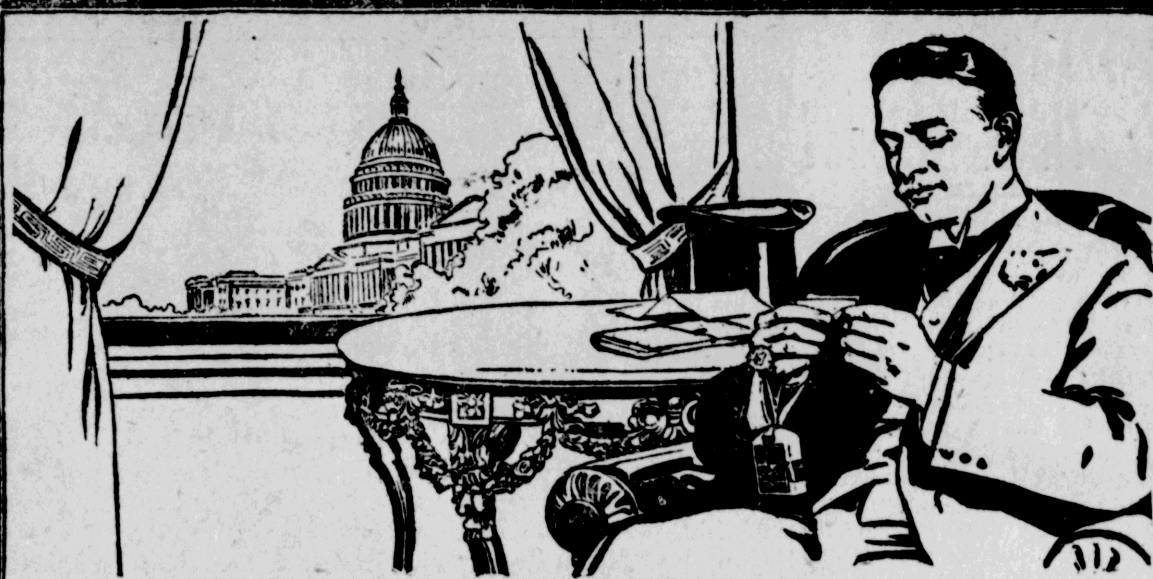

The Pittsburgh club has given South-paw Pitcher George Sisler, the Michigan university recruit, his unconditional release.

The Montreal club has traded Out-felder Frank Kilgort to the Seattle club of the Northwestern league for Pitcher Fullerton.

Shortstop Heinie Wagner has "come back" strong. His arm is in better condition than ever. The only thing worrying Boston now is, can he stay back?

Failures.

Failing and being a failure are two entirely different things, and there are people who wring more success out of their misfortune than others do out of all the advantages showered upon them. It is not failing but staying down that makes a failure.

CHAUTAUQUA TICKETS.

Contract Made on Verbal Assurance That is Disregarded.

Kingston, N. Y., April 22, 1915.

The Editor: I subscribed for and paid for two season tickets to the Chautauqua Course, therefore my criticism of the peculiar tactics of the board of guarantors, and some newspapers of this city, is not a personal matter.

I was present at the session on May 16, 1914, when the subscription tickets were urged upon the people and very distinctly remember that it was stated from the platform that the signing of these tickets was to be considered as absolutely binding the party so signing to the purchase of tickets. It was to be simply a declaration of their desire to do so, thus giving the committee some idea of the support they might count upon receiving. That was their verbal statement in effect, but the subscription ticket is as obligatory as a promissory note.

I am personally associated with a most worthy man who subscribed for tickets under the above conditions. Since then he has met with reverses, his wife had to be taken to the hospital for an operation for appendicitis and this week he was notified that his services in his present position would not be needed longer.

He notified the committee of guarantors of his plight and asked to be relieved of his obligation to take the tickets and was told firmly that they could not excuse him, and now this man is threatened with the odium that would result from the publication of his name as a defaulter.

The effect upon me has been such that I assure you that if my tickets had not been paid for, I would not take them now, and furthermore I will not be a subscriber to next year's course if one is proposed.

Hupmobile

CAR OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Ask the Farmer

The average farmer judges the average man by his capacity for hard work—his productiveness.

And the qualities he admires in a man he admires—and finds—in a Hupmobile.

He likes the strong pull of the long-stroke motor. He has proved that the Hupmobile will stand hard knocks and rough going. It is always ready for service.

He knows that it is as nearly trouble-proof as a motor can be.

He knows that it will ask him next to nothing for its board and keep. Repair expense is almost zero.

He needs no technical knowledge to make such simple adjustments as the Hupmobile may require.

Hupmobile history can be summed up as one good car after another—each season a bigger value.

He figures that mighty few motor cars can show so clean a record.

His own experience is backed up by the experience of farmer friends and neighbors. They are all Hupmobile boosters.

So he keeps on buying one Hupmobile after another—always getting a high second-hand price when he sells—always getting a better Hupmobile when he buys.

He is one of the best friends the Hupmobile has in America.

The Hupmobile case is safe in his hands. Ask him about Hupmobile; and see the cars at our showrooms.

THAW TO HAVE TRIAL BY JURY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, April 23.—Harry K. Thaw has won his long fight for a sanity trial. Justice Hendrick of the supreme court today handed down a decision granting the slayer of Stanford White a hearing to determine whether he is sane or insane.

The trial of Thaw's sanity will be conducted before a jury. Justice Hendrick deciding that it was within his power to grant this request.

Thaw took his victory calmly, as he has his previous defeats, smiling when the court handed down the decision, which was a long one, going fully into the merits of the case.

Thaw was heavily guarded while in court and while on his way there because of reports that efforts would be made to rescue him from the authorities if the decision was against him.

Four armed deputy sheriffs led by Under-sheriff Frank Bowers accompanied Thaw from his cell in the Tombs to the court room of Justice Hendrick. These guards had been instructed to use force of arms to prevent any attempt to rescue Thaw and help him escape from custody.

This order had been issued by Sheriff Griffenhagen, who declared he was convinced that some sort of a plot had been formed to rescue Thaw.

"It would be hard to carry out such a plot," said the sheriff, "but I am taking no chances."

Thaw chuckled when he learned of the sheriff's precautions. His attorney, John B. Stanchfield, characterized the report that an effort would be made to rescue Thaw as "silly" and "bunk."

Three policemen were also on guard in the court room, on the lookout for any suspicious character. They remained near Thaw while Justice Hendrick was reading his decision.

The decision was on a writ of habeas corpus sworn out by Attorney Stanchfield several weeks ago. No date for the trial was set in the decision.

OUR GREAT CANAL

How Vessels Cross From Ocean to Ocean at Panama.

GOING THROUGH THE LOCKS.

Electric Locomotives of Unique Design, With a Cog Rail System, Are Used For Towing Purposes—Safeguarding the Lock Walls and Gates.

Forty electric locomotives of unique design are used to tow shipping through the huge locks of the Panama canal. When the canal was being planned it was apparent that the various winch and capstan systems in vogue for towing ships through existing canals and locks would not do at all for Panama. After a thorough study of the entire problem of maneuvering ships through the locks at Panama it was evident that they could not safely proceed through the locks under their own power and that a substitute for the ship's power should embrace the following requirements:

Ability to place the ship in proper relation to the lock.

Capability for keeping the ship in its course.

Accelerating and retarding the ship without rupturing the lines.

The lines when once attached should be used without change for lockage in flight.

In passing through the canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific a vessel enters the approach channel in Limon bay, which extends to Gatun, a distance of about seven miles. At Gatun it enters a series of three locks in flight and is raised eighty-five feet to the level of Gatun lake. It then steams at full speed through the greater part of the channel in this lake for a distance of twenty-four miles to Bas Obispo, where it enters the Culebra cut. It passes through this cut, which has a length of nine miles, and reaches Pedro Miguel, where it enters a lock and is lowered thirty feet. Then it passes through Miraflores lake for a distance of one and one-half miles until it reaches Miraflores, where it is lowered fifty-five feet through two locks to the sea level, after which it passes out into the Pacific through an eight and one-half mile channel.

The main features of all the lock sites are identical, and the following brief description of the Gatun locks, with special reference to the arrangement of the towing tracks, ship channels, inclines and approaches, gives a clearer conception of the towing scheme in general.

There are two channels at Gatun, one for traffic in each direction. The channels are separated by a center wall, the total length of which is 6,330 feet. There are two systems of tracks, one for towing and the other for the return of the electric locomotives when returning idle. This, however, refers only to the outer walls. For the center wall there is only one return track in common for both the towing tracks. The towing tracks are naturally placed next to the channel side, and the system of towing utilizes normally not less than four locomotives running along the lock walls. Two of them are opposite each other in advance of the vessel, and two run opposite each other following the vessel. The number of locomotives is, however, increased when the tonnage of the ship demands it.

Cables extend from the forward locomotives and connect with the port and starboard sides, respectively, of the vessel near the bow, and other cables connect the rear locomotives with the port and starboard quarters of the vessel. The lengths of the various cables are adjusted by a special winding drum on the locomotive to place the vessel substantially in midchannel. When the leading locomotives are started they tow the vessel, while the trailing locomotives follow and keep the cables taut. By changing the lengths of the rear cables the vessel can be guided, and to stop the vessel all the locomotives are slowed down and stopped, thus bringing the rear locomotives in action to retard the ship. Therefore, the vessel is always under complete control quite independent of its own power, which is not used, and the danger of injury to the lock walls and gates is consequently very greatly lessened.

These towing tracks have a specially designed rack rail extending the entire length of the track between the rails. It is through this rack that the locomotive exerts the traction necessary for propelling large ships and climbing the steep inclines. When the locomotive reaches one of the inclines between the locks, the grade of which may be as much as 44 per cent, or when it is towing a ship, the cog rail system is utilized to enable the locomotive to climb the grade and in the other case to exert traction necessary for pulling the ships. The cog or rack rail is laid between the track rails and the locomotive is provided with a cog wheel or rack pinion to engage the rail.—Electric News.

Turn About.

"You'd better hide somewhere," said the rooster to the hen, "the boss has an ax in his hand and he's laying for you."

"Well," said the hen resignedly, "I presume I have no right to complain. I've been laying for him for a good many years."—Boston Transcript.

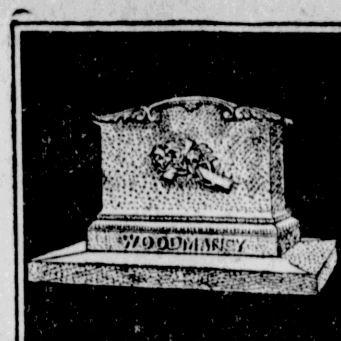

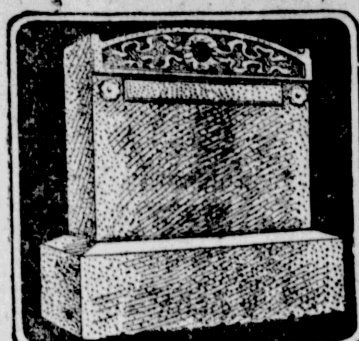

The feet of fate are tender, for she sets her steps not on the ground, but on the heads of men.—Homer.

Failed to Absorb.

"My shock absorber was a failure," "How so?" It looked all right.

"Couldn't manage to manufacture it cheaply enough."

"I see. It wouldn't absorb the shock caused by the announcement of the price."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

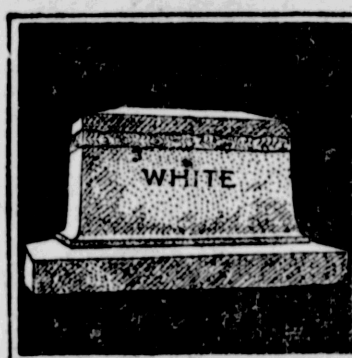

SPLENDID MONEY-SAVINGS AT THIS DISPOSAL OF MONUMENTS

Price Reductions That Are Genuine and Sweeping in Character

At no previous time during the history of this firm has it been found necessary to announce price-reductions on its products, but a series of circumstances incidental to a business like ours make the disposal of all surplus monuments, etc., imperative at this particular time. If beauty of design, excellence of workmanship, perfection in the minutest detail and sharp price-reductions count for anything, there should be a whirlwind of Monument buying here while the price bars are down and the big money-saving chances are yours to embrace.

It was with the utmost reluctance that we launched this price-cutting event, but, as stated, conditions compelled us to act. Over-production, lack of room in our marble yard and the adjustment of the estate of a deceased member of the firm of Byrne Brothers pointed out to us the necessity of acting promptly with heroic attacks upon all former prices. Every Monument on hand is involved in our determination to reduce our over-production quickly and decisively.

This is not a "sale." It is a legitimate business proposition that should appeal irresistibly to every man or woman who has been thinking of remembering a departed relative with a monument this Spring. A similar money-saving opportunity may not again be presented in a lifetime. But you must act promptly, for we reserve the right to discontinue the specially lowered prices as soon as a sufficient number of Monuments have been disposed of to afford the relief sought. To those who are trustworthy and mean business we offer liberal terms and attractive prices, and stand ready to volunteer profitable advice born of ripe, practical experience.

Remarkably Low Prices AT WASHINGTON MARKET

For Saturday we have arranged savings all along the line—economies hard to duplicate. Our week-end events have grown enormously in volume of business, and despite the cry of "hard times" and "high cost of living," we sell as many meats, bolognas, vegetables and fruits as we ever did during the "good times" era. Following are prices cut to a dangerous depth on high-grade food articles, but we have "counted the cost" and, as on every Saturday, we will take our loss of profits philosophically.

FINE WEEK-END SAVINGS AT Messinger's Saturday Sale

One of the things which this market started out to do well was to maintain fresh, wholesome stocks of Meats, Canned Goods, etc., and that the cleanliness and superior qualities of our lines have contributed in no small measure to the growth and success of this business, goes without saying. And we insist that they MUST be kept so.

Our Saturday prices should prove a big drawing card, especially at this time of the year when money is scarce among the middle classes and when the dollar looks twice its usual size.

PEAR CROP IN GREAT DANGER

Pear Growers in the Vicinity of Milton and Marlborough are Suffering Considerable Loss from Pear Thrips.

This is rather a new and important insect pest. It attacks the apples, cherries and pears, but is most destructive on pears. The adult thrips is a small darkish brown winged insect, much longer than broad. Since the wings are folded over the back, the insect appears even with a magnifying glass to be wingless. It appears in destructive numbers when the buds are opening, attacking the tenderness of the flower parts. It sucks the juice from the undeveloped bud and leaf stems, causing these to wither and die. Their principal destruction is in destroying the blossoms before they have an opportunity to open.

Their presence is not noticed unless one carefully examines the bursting blossom clusters by tearing them open, and sees these minute insects down among the crevices between the stems.

Control.

Since this is mainly a sucking insect, it must be hit with a contact insecticide in order to destroy it. Arsenate of lead does not affect it. Black Leaf 40 used alone is of little use. Treatment recommended by Prof. Parrott, of the Geneva Experimental Station, is as follows:

Black Leaf 40, $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ pints.
Water, 100 gallons.
Soap, 2 to 5 pounds, or
Kerosene Emulsion, 3 gallons.
Walter Clark, of Milton, N. Y., who has been actively combating this insect pest, states that $\frac{3}{4}$ of a pint of Black Leaf 40 is not strong enough, and recommends using a pint.

It is most desirable to use the Kerosene Emulsion with the Black Leaf 40 and water, because the oil emulsion possesses superior penetrating properties and it is believed that the using of Emulsion with the nicotine should make the combination the most desirable spray, for the treatment of partially opened buds and compact blossom clusters to reach the hidden thrips.

Time to Spray.

One of the desirable times to spray is just as it was when the blossom bud clusters were just breaking the shuck. At the present time when the buds are partially opened, a thorough spraying with Black Leaf 40 and Emulsion will destroy many of the thrips and save the killing of the blossoms. The most effective spraying for the adults can be done when the blossom clusters are opened full enough to allow spray materials to penetrate to all parts. Use rather a coarse spray with 150 pounds pressure, directing the spray into the blossoms.

The Farm Bureau urges you to co-operate with your neighbors in the control of this pest, which menaces the pear industry. If it is not possible for you to make the sprayings above mentioned, by all means add one pint of Black Leaf 40 to 100 gallons of water to your mixture for the Codling Moth spray. At the time the petals have fallen the young thrips, which have hatched out, are in the blossoms and on the blossom stems, and by using the Black Leaf 40 effectively at that time, the next year's crop of thrips will be very greatly lessened, if not destroyed entirely. If nothing is done to check the multiplication of the thrips the whole pear industry will have to go.

Will you help to protect the pear industry by examining your trees and making the spraying recommended?

Bulletin No. 342 of the Geneva Experimental Station, on pear thrips, by Professor Parrott, gives a full description of this insect with excellent illustrations and the methods of control as determined so far. You are urged to send for the bulletin so as to become thoroughly familiar with this pest.

I am anxious to co-operate with the pear growers in the suppression of this pest. I shall gladly identify this insect give directions for spraying or demonstrate the making of kerosene emulsion.

If you find thrips in your apples, cherries, or pears, will you write a card to the Farm Bureau office, Kingston, N. Y., on this fact, so that we may know the extent of the injuries and the consequent need of action.

Directions for making kerosene emulsion:
Kerosene 2 gallons
Whale oil or fish oil soap, $\frac{1}{2}$ pound
Soft water 1 gallon
Dissolve the soap which has been finely divided in one gallon of boiling water. Remove the vessel from the stove and add the oil. Then agitate the mixture violently from 3 to 5 minutes by pumping into itself under high pressure, until a creamy mass is formed, from which the oil does not separate.

Fruit growers are advised not to use an emulsion which shows a separation of the oil as applications of such preparations may cause injuries to the trees.

RUSSIAN MOTOR TRUCKS STALLED

RUSSIAN MOTOR TRUCK STALLED ON ROUGH TRAIL IN POLAND.

The photograph shows a string of French made automobile trucks stranded on a rough trail in Poland. Lack of roads has proved a serious handicap to the Grand Duke Nicholas, who has been unable to maneuver his troops with the speed and efficiency that Hindenburg could. France has shipped hundreds of automobiles and trucks to Russia and they have been used to advantage in hauling supplies in Russia proper, where there is a semblance of a road system. In Poland, however, where the heavy fighting has been going on the roads are too bad to permit of use by the trucks and generally horses are relied on.

BARNES WAS JEKYL AND HYDE

Roosevelt and He Were David and Jonathan Until the Colonel Found He Was Unable to Eradicate the Mr. Hyde Phase of Character.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Syracuse, April 23.—Damon and Pythias, and David and Jonathan were no more devoted to each other's interests than were Theodore Roosevelt and William Barnes, before the colonel discovered, he said, that Mr. Barnes was a Dr. Jekyll and a Mr. Hyde.

When Mr. Hyde got the upper hand of the combination Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Barnes fell out.

The colonel was interested in Barnes because he was trying to reform him, according to Roosevelt's testimony under cross-examination by William M. Ivins today.

He believed Barnes above the average politician morally, Roosevelt said and he wanted to make Barnes a useful citizen.

According to the colonel, Mr. Barnes was a Jekyll and Hyde and he wanted to preserve Dr. Jekyll, but Mr. Hyde absorbed him.

When Mr. Hyde got the upper hand in 1911, the colonel and Mr. Barnes came to the parting of the ways.

But letters passed between Barnes and Roosevelt in 1898-1899 showed an extremely friendly tone and Roosevelt admitted that he entertained Mr. Barnes and his wife in the White House at Washington and the executive mansion at Albany.

Mr. Roosevelt was still the hero of the court room crowd as he literally fought his way out to luncheon when court recessed at 12:30 p. m. until 2 o'clock.

He appeared to be jubilant.

The morning session of the colonel's fourth day on the witness stand was marked by frequent clashes with Mr. Ivins. Obviously the Barnes forces were annoyed if not alarmed by the attention paid to the colonel by press and public.

Mr. Ivins sought at every turn to confine the colonel's answers and for himself a stern rebuke from Justice Andrews when he demanded that "this witness be treated as any ordinary witness."

But it was apparent from today's sharp encounters that the colonel had proved a tartar to Mr. Ivins and was not being led into any subtle trap by the chief counsel for Mr. Barnes.

Syracuse, April 23.—Colonel Roosevelt today won an important victory over William Barnes in their finish fight when Justice Andrews rebuked William M. Ivins of Barnes's counsel and ruled the colonel could answer questions in his own way.

"I'll strike out what I deem improper," said the court.

Netted by the triumphant attitude of the colonel and his cohorts, Mr. Ivins lost his equanimity and demanded the colonel be treated like "an ordinary witness."

The court said he was and would be.

The conflict was precipitated when Ivins touched on the removal of Insurance Commissioner Payn in 1899.

"Was not Mr. Payn removed?" asked Ivins.

"I would rather say he was got out of office," said the colonel.

"Did you not appoint his successor?"

Mr. Roosevelt said he did.

"But had I known all conditions then my attitude in 1898 and 1899 would have been the same as it is now," snapped the colonel.

"I did not ask that," said Mr. Ivins.

"What do you mean by 'conditions'?"

"I mean I would have made the same fight then I am making now, had I known of the union of the two machines," said the witness.

"I move that he be stricken out," snapped Mr. Ivins, losing his temper for the first time.

"You must let him finish his answers," said Bowers.

"Any other witness," retorted Ivins.

"He must not make political speeches to the jury."

"Mr. Ivins," sternly said Justice Andrews, "this witness will be treated as any other witness."

"I apologize, Your Honor," said Ivins and proceeded.

The court ruled that any improper part of Roosevelt's testimony could be stricken out.

"I am asking a lot of these questions just to test your memory," said Mr. Ivins.

The quiz then turned on the Payn matter which brought forth the fireworks.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had entertained William Barnes at his house but never met him alone.

"I extended my hospitality to Mr. Barnes in Washington," he said.

"And in Albany?"

"I believe so."

"And to Mrs. Barnes?"

"And to Mrs. Barnes," said the colonel, repeating the question.

"But I never held a meeting with him alone."

Mr. Roosevelt was asked why, if he thought Mr. Barnes corrupt, he entertained him, advised with him and consulted him.

"Because, Mr. Ivins," started the colonel.

"I insist this witness must answer my questions 'yes' or 'no'—when possible," shouted Mr. Ivins.

"He cannot answer that 'yes' or 'no' to that," said Bowers.

"I want to tell the jury," said Roosevelt.

"Yes, you are telling the jury a lot of things," retorted Ivins.

The court instructed Roosevelt to answer 'yes' or 'no' when possible and then amplify his answers.

The question was then repeated.

"I advised with Mr. Barnes," said the colonel, "because I found Mr. Barnes above the average of ordinary political leaders."

"I thought his morality at least above the ordinary political and business morality and believed he had it in him to become a valuable leader in the state.

"I hoped to eliminate the bad in Mr. Barnes and develop the good."

"Why did you want to reform Mr. Barnes?"

"I found him a 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde,'" replied the colonel.

"I wanted to save Dr. Jekyll and kill Mr. Hyde. Mr. Barnes was only one of hundreds of political men throughout the country in whom I was interested trying to bring out the best there is in them—trying to make them useful citizens."

"When did Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde separate?" asked Ivins. "When did it become necessary to sever the ligament uniting these Barnes Siamese twins?"

"I'd not say it was a severing of the ligament," said the colonel laughing, "but rather a case of one absorbing the other—Dr. Jekyll being swallowed up by Mr. Hyde."

Mr. Roosevelt admitted he twice appointed Mr. Barnes to office and said he abandoned his missionary work in 1911.

Mr. Ivins read from the autobiography, many phrases such as "invisible government," "invisible empire," etc.

"Is it not a fact," said Mr. Ivins, "that you have used in your testimony today exact phrases from your autobiography?"

"I do not remember."

"You mean you do not remember what you have said this morning?"

"I mean I do not remember my phraseology," said Mr. Roosevelt. "Please put your question so I can answer it, Mr. Ivins."

"I am asking you, if I can put it so you can answer it intelligently if you have not today phrased your answers in the language of your autobiography," said Mr. Ivins.

"Is it not a fact you used certain phrases until they became formulas?"

"No."

"Why not?" asked Ivins.

"A formula is something you do not believe and repeat by rote," said the colonel.

"These repeated phrases of mine were not formulas but things I believe in absolutely and translate into action whenever I have opportunity."

"Do you believe two and two make four?" asked Ivins.

"I do."

"Is that not a formula?" retorted Mr. Ivins.

"I do not know," Roosevelt answered with a grin.

In support of his question about "Familiar" phrases being used in the autobiography and in today's testimony, Mr. Ivins read an excerpt in which Mr. Roosevelt said:

"My aim is to get results. My favorite quotation from Josh Billings is one that says it is a good thing to combine the harmless dove and the wise serpent."

Another excerpt was: "Every time I was invited to meet Senator Platt, which was usually after breakfast at the Fifth avenue hotel, I knew I had done something to displease him."

Mr. Ivins then went back to Barnes.

"Did you make an attack on Mr. Barnes in 1911?"

"I made a speech on boss rule in 1910 or 1911," was the answer.

"Did you refer to Mr. Barnes in that speech?"

"I did, but also to other bosses," said the colonel. "My speech was not an individual attack delivered at Mr. Barnes's house."

The plaintiff put in evidence a series of letters between Roosevelt and Barnes in December 1898. Mr. Roosevelt identified the letters saying all but one of those from him to Barnes was identified by him personally.

The letters, Mr. Ivins said, were offered to show the personal relations between Mr. Barnes and Mr. Roosevelt before Mr. Roosevelt broke with Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Bowers objected to admitting the letters.

The letters were admitted and read.

The first was from Barnes to Roosevelt of Nov. 15, 1898 and began: "Dear colonel."

"I have no desire to intrude on you," Mr. Barnes said, but he told the colonel he would like to see Mr. Roosevelt retained as military secretary and W. G. Rice as insurance commissioner.

Mr. Barnes then continued to flatter Mr. Roosevelt on his election and was sure there was a great future for Mr. Roosevelt and the organization.

Other letters from Mr. Barnes to Colonel Roosevelt, both at Oyster Bay and Albany, all of them recommending the appointment of various Republicans to state offices.

Another letter from Barnes opposed the introduction of the biennial legislature in Roosevelt's inaugural message to the legislature.

"If you advocate that amendment or oppose it," Mr. Barnes wrote, "it would stir up antagonism. But if you fall to mention the subject at all, it will not be noticed. A biennial legislature would be a gratuitous slap at the people of Albany."

Roosevelt's letters to Barnes were read. They were answers to those from Barnes and Mr. Ivins referred to them as "bilateral correspondence."

Mr. Bowers objected to the phrase and was sustained.

The letters were read. The first was of February 20, 1899 and referred to a Lincoln dinner at Albany, in which Roosevelt asked what "recognition he could extend to Senator Depew."

Other letters from Roosevelt were answers of Governor Roosevelt to Barnes's suggestions about appointments. In one letter Mr. Roosevelt asked Mr. Barnes to return this as soon as you have read it."

This letter referred to the reinstatement in an asylum of a bookkeeper who lost his job when he went to the Spanish-American war.

"Every man who goes to war for his country should be taken care of," wrote Roosevelt.

Diplomatic Meaning.

"What do you mean when you say you are going to establish a protectorate over us?" asked the weaker government. "We mean," replied the stronger, "that we are going to protect ourselves as far as possible against any further annoyances on your part."

Sarah J. Schoonmaker—An Appreciation.

Entered into Life Eternal, on Tuesday evening, April 20, 1915, Sarah J. Schoonmaker, daughter of the late Moses I. Schoonmaker of Accord, and Phoebe Ann Decker, his wife. Miss Schoonmaker laid down the burden of a tireless life at beautiful Rosemont, the home of her sister, Mrs. Alton B. Parker, at Esopus, New York, where she had lived for the past fourteen years.

It seemed fitting that she should die at such a time when the birth of Spring is bearing fresh witness to the vitality and buoyancy of her own unconquerable, immortal spirit.

For many years the home of Mr. and Mrs. Schoonmaker, on the old post road at Accord, was noted for and wide for its generous hospitality.

Many eminent men sat at their board, and all bore testimony to the grace and untiring energy of the daughter, who in the disability of an invalid mother, presided so capably over the household. Those who were privileged to know her, found her possessed of a wide and accurate knowledge in belles-lettres and the humanities, art and science, men and their affairs. She had long learned to make the best use of time, and was a constant reader and student to the very end.

Miss Schoonmaker will always be remembered for her rare unselfishness. Her life exemplified that to love is to serve. Sweet charity shone out in all she did for friend or relative, and her kindness was shown freely and ungrudgingly to the needy and distressed of her neighborhood. Strongest of her many lovely traits of character was her love for children, to whom she often must have seemed more than a mother. Her life of untiring, uncomplaining service was a daily lesson to the many who were brought up under her sweet influence. Her nieces and nephews were to her as her own children. Kindly and indefatigably she laid down precept upon precept, line upon line. No cross word, no impatient gesture, no intolerant expression ever came from her; they loved her in return even as she loved them. They will never forget her.

Miss Schoonmaker is survived by a brother, John J. Schoonmaker, of Accord, New York, and by two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Tanner, of Kingston, N. Y., and Mrs. Alton B. Parker, of Esopus, N. Y.

Sweet charity shone out in all she did for friend or relative, and her kindness was shown freely and ungrudgingly to the needy and distressed of her neighborhood. Strongest of her many lovely traits of character was her love for children, to whom she often must have seemed more than a mother. Her life of untiring, uncomplaining service was a daily lesson to the many who were brought up under her sweet influence. Her nieces and nephews were to her as her own children. Kindly and indefatigably she laid down precept upon precept, line upon line. No cross word, no impatient gesture, no intolerant expression ever came from her; they loved her in return even as she loved them. They will never forget her.

Miss Schoonmaker is survived by a brother, John J. Schoonmaker, of Accord, New York, and by two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Tanner, of Kingston, N. Y., and Mrs. Alton B. Parker, of Esopus, N. Y.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 23.—A great injustice seems to have been done Tom Jones, the manager of Jess Willard, by terming him a chronic grouch and the greatest tightwad connected with the pugilistic game. Jones is affable; he is accommodating and he turned a trick in Havana that showed that he isn't perpetually tight with funds.

About two weeks before the Johnson-Willard battle was staged in Havana, Harry Frazee the so-called "financial backer" of the fight, arrived in the Cuban town. The fellow promoters of Frazee decided to give him a banquet and a large flock of Havana newspaper men were invited. The Cuban scribblers arrived at the banquet hall on time but none of the promoters showed up to act as hosts. Jack Robinson, who acted as press agent for the fight, was there but he came merely as a guest—not as an associate host.

The banquet hour arrived—and passed. Jack Curley, Harry Frazee, Dick Kregin and others did not appear. The newspaper men grew nervous. Robinson was more so. Finally he appealed to Captain Cushman A. Rice, the American millionaire in Cuba.

"It will give us a black eye if we send these fellows away without eats and drinks," said Robinson. "I haven't got the ready cash to finance the party. What will I do?"

"Give them the banquet and if the promoters don't show up have the bill charged to me," said Captain Rice. So the banquet started but it hardly had gotten under way when Jones and Willard came into the big dining room. Robinson slipped over to Jones and explained the situation to Jones.

"Capt. Rice has guaranteed the bill in case Curley and the others don't show up," said Robinson. "But it seems to me that is something of an imposition on Rice." "That's what it is," said Jones. "It's mighty decent of Captain Rice but it isn't fair to let him pay when he is under no obligation to the promoters. I'll pay the bill. Have it brought to me. And see to it that the boys get everything they want. Order the best there is."

Jones, it must be remembered, had absolutely nothing to do with arranging the banquet. He knew nothing about it until Robinson acquainted him with the facts concerning the non-arrival of the hosts and the honor guest. If the banquet had fizzled Jones would not have been responsible, nor would it have given him a "black eye." But Jones didn't want those Cuban newspaper men to know that the promoters of the fight could go to such an awful extreme as inviting them to a banquet and then failing to show up to guarantee the bills.

Tom Jones paid the bill. It amounted to something over $60. That sum doesn't look overly large to most men. It doesn't look large to Jones today, but it looked like a million dollars to Jones the day he paid it out because at that time the $60 meant nearly all of Jones's ready cash.

The expenses preliminary to the big fight had eaten into Jones's capital. He landed in Havana with a fair sized bank roll but he at once proceeded to bet it on Willard. And so, at the time that Tom Jones paid for that banquet, he gave out nearly every dollar of his ready money with the prospect—if Willard lost—of facing bankruptcy.

Such an act isn't of a tightwad nature, is it?

Jones convinced the newspaper men who met him for the first time in Havana that he has been placed in a wrong light by those who call him "crabby." Jones did everything that he could to keep the newspaper men in getting news concerning Willard. And he gave them straight facts. He was honest.

While the promoters were telling everyone that the seating capacity at the fight arena was anywhere from 20,000 to 60,000, Jones said the total capacity was around 19,000—"and not one seat more."

The promoters tried to give the impression that the gate receipts would be enormous, even in the face of the small sales that were being made. Jones didn't try to bunk any one. He said that "the sales might reach $15,000 and they might not."

If there was any little feature concerning the fight or concerning Willard that some of the newspaper boys didn't get Jones saw to it that they got it. He either sent a messenger up to the fight headquarters or he went in person.

Of course, what Jones did in this connection reacted as an extra bit of publicity for Willard, but Jones's act was not prompted by the desire for that additional publicity. Jones did it merely as a courtesy to the newspaper men.

Some folks may vote Jones as "tight" with money and crabby in disposition but we'll cast our vote the other way, and with our ballot will be cast those of practically all the other newspaper men who were in Havana for the Willard-Johnson doings.
